• What do you do when you need more disk space, but are on a limited budget? ... Call or visit www.dmgi.net If you are using Solaris 8, 9, or 10 you can take advantage of Sun's new higher capacity disk drives. You have a couple of choices if you are looking for a SCSI solution, Single Ended SCSI or Differential SCSI. Differential SCSI arrays require an additional PCI controller, but are rack mountable, have dual power supplies, and can be located farther away from the server than Single Ended SCSI. Here are a couple Sun Differential SCSI arrays with 146GB disk drives. The other side of this flyer features several Single Ended SCSI solutions.

Sun SE Storage Solutions

Do you have one of these Sun Servers or Workstations and need more disk space? All of these machines have a built in Single Ended SCSI port. We have external Single Ended SCSI cabinets made by Sun that we can configure with Sun 36GB, 73GB, and 146GB disk drives. Here are a few ideas and configurations:

- Sun Unipack holds 1 disk and is 3" H x 7.5" W x 12.5" L. (2' SCSI cable included)
- Sun Multipack 6 holds 6 disks and is 9" H x 8" W x 15.5" L (2' SCSI cable included)
- Sun D130 holds 3 disks and is a 1U Rack Mount unit. (Rack Ears & 2' SCSI cable included)
- Sun S1 holds 3 disks and is a 1U Rack Mount unit. (Rack Ears & 2' SCSI cable included)
- Sun D240 holds two disks, a DVD, and a Tape Drive. It is a 2U Rack Mount Unit. (Rack Ears & 2' SCSI cable included)

If your Sun Server or Workstation does not have a SE SCSI port we have the Sun X1032A controller for $ 225. The X1032A is a PCI SCSI plus 10 / 100 Ethernet controller and works well with all these SCSI disk cabinets as well as most Sun SE tape drives.
